TITLE

Metadata in Russian

Author's full name, scientific degree, title,
ORCID, e-mail
Affiliation, full postal address

Abstract (short)

Metadata in English
ENGLISH TITLE

Author (Ivan I. IVANOV),
ORCID, e-mail
Affiliation, full mailing address

Abstract (250-300 words)
About authors

Sections in the main body of the article

INTRODUCTION (STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM)
Declare the general topic of the research. Disclose the theoretical and practical relevance of the work and describe the most authoritative and accessible publications on the topic. Also designate the problems not solved in previous studies, which are supposed to solve in this article; formulate the main idea of the publication, which differs significantly from the current understanding of the problem, which complements or deepens already known approaches to it.

CONTENT OF THE CONDUCTED RESEARCH
(BROKEN DOWN INTO SEMANTIC PARTS WITH SUBHEADINGS)

Main text of the article.

RESEARCH RESULTS (CONCLUSIONS)

The results of comprehension of the topic are summarized, conclusions, generalizations and recommendations arising from the work are made, their practical importance is emphasized, and the main directions for further research in this area are identified.

LIST OF REFERENCES

Includes only the author's sources subject to mandatory indexing.

OTHER SOURCES

Includes anonymous sources (documents, statistical collections and materials, etc.). They are not subject to indexing.

Page-by-page explanatory and illustrative footnotes can and should be given.

Requirements for abstracts

1. The abstract in Russian should be compact (one paragraph, up to 600 characters). The abstract should briefly summarize the main results of the study and their scientific significance.

2. The English-language abstract, in which the meaning of the analysis conducted and conclusions drawn on its basis should be disclosed, is of primary importance for improving the visibility of the material for non-Russian-speaking audiences. It should be detailed enough (the average volume is 250-300 words, but it can be more), written in competent English with the use of special English terminology. You should categorically avoid the use of general words, unsupported declaration of the author's intentions. To meet such requirements, Abstract should be written as an original independent text, literal translation of the Russian-language abstract is inadmissible.

Keywords should reflect the main points, terminology of scientific research, be relevant, including in the international scientific space. This will increase the visibility of a particular scientific study, as all bibliographic databases are able to search for articles by keywords.